PROFILE

I am a software developer with a background in Python and JavaScript/TypeScript. Having successfully completed numerous projects, I have gained a solid foundation in full-stack development, working with technologies such as React.js, Next.js, the MERN stack, Flask, and SQL. I have good experience with version control systems such as Git, and I can write GitHub Actions and simple workflows. I also have experience with WebSockets, both on the front-end and back-end. As an 18-year-old student, I am striving to learn more about computer science, master core algorithms and data structures on LeetCode, and gather professional experience through real-world projects.

PROJECTS

EASY FEAST

https://github.com/sandro-buzhghulashvili/easy-feast

Easy Feast is a dynamic web application that replicates a B2C (Business-to-Consumer) food ordering system. This platform empowers users to effortlessly place orders for various culinary delights, complete with optional addons for specific items, all with the convenience of delivery to a specified address. The application also comes equipped with robust administrative features, allowing administrators to confirm orders, manage menus and addons, and monitor vital business metrics.

- React/Typescript
- React Router(loaders,actions and more)
- React Context and Redux for state management
- Tailwind CSS for styling
- SCSS for additional styling enhancements
- Framer Motion for smooth animations
- ChartJS for statistics
- Firebase Realtime Database for data storage
- Firebase Authentication for user management
